Winter came and the couple planted cold weather lettuce. They went looking for exotic birds, different from the ones they usually see. In spring, they were busy planting raspberries and broad beans. They picked leeks and garlic. It was May before anyone heard of the old man leaving. When the couple were told, they were stunned by the news and felt remorseful that they did not bid him farewell. Then they were drawn once more to his roses. The bushes were flowering again in dramatic swirls of colour, like silent explosions, like faraway suns. They were fully grown and truly beautiful, but there was something else about them too, something in the way they had been laid out, that now brought to mind the arrangement of flowers in a secret garden.

Stay FIT!

FIT stands for "Fabulous, Informed, Tough"

Programmes coming soon

This time, the campaign will run in the month of December with activities planned for the young and the young at heart. Activities include:

- free fitness classes for residents of Raffles Estate every Friday evening
- a cooking contest for residents with the focus on "Less Salt, Less Sugar and Less Oil" on 8 December
- the "Stay FIT!" carnival where participants have fun exercising and learning about healthy living

Come join in the activities and support the "Stay FIT!" campaign. Do visit www.hcb.org.sg/stayfit for more information.

How the campaign started

"Stay FIT!" is a biannual campaign organised by the Health Care Board (HCB). The brainchild of Mrs Lucy Lee from HCB, the campaign aims to encourage the people in Raffles Estate community to lead a healthy lifestyle. The campaign first began in 2011 involving Raffles Primary School and the Residents' Committee. Initially targeted at the elderly living in the estate, the campaign included health talks and skits about healthy living. The campaign is now into its ninth year and has extended its reach to the schools and all the residents in the Raffles Estate community.

"When I was young, my grandparents took care of me. They let me eat whatever I wanted and did not think exercise was important. Subsequently, I became overweight and was very sick. My grandparents were unhealthy too. Hence, I hope that with the campaign, everyone will be more aware of what they eat and exercise regularly. I would like to see everyone fit and healthy!"

Mrs Lucy Lee shared what she hoped to achieve through the campaign.

Mangroves play an important role in protecting Earth from the effects of climate change. The ability (29) _____ soak up carbon dioxide and store large amounts of it (30) _____ gained mangroves a growing prominence globally. On top (31) _____ that, they act as nurseries for crabs, prawns and fishes and protect coasts (32) _____ storms and floods. Mangroves also store (33) _____ carbon dioxide than any other ecosystem.

Singapore once had about 7,500 hectares of mangroves. Unfortunately, land reclamation and reservoir construction had destroyed as much as 90 percent of it. (34) _____ fact, deforestation destroyed 2 percent of South-east Asia's mangroves between 2000 (35) _____ 2012, totalling more than 100,000 hectares. Often, they were cleared to make way (36) _____ rice and oil palm plantations. This has huge implications because mangroves store so much carbon dioxide. (37) _____ the mangrove forest is destroyed, a lot of carbon dioxide will be released into (38) _____ environment.

However, if we protect mangroves or restore mangroves, they are one of the best ways to slow down climate change because they absorb much carbon dioxide from the atmosphere.

shortages, dry taps are the much unpleasant by far.

(42)

Dishes are brushed off and reused and clothing is not something regular (47)

are a good neighbour and are not anngy others.

We are also at risk because water stagnating in the vessels that people stash around their homes attracted mosquitoes. Thus, malaria rates have soared. The (49)

(48)

The Ministry of Education (MOE) announced new changes to the education system recently. The system is in the process of being changed to reduce _____ on (51) students. These changes include doing _____ with a rigid T-score in the Primary (52) School Leaving Examination and adopting a wider grade band system. This move aims _____ allow aptitude-based entry of students to higher institutions. Students can (53) gain _____ into schools via the Direct School Admission Exercise (54) _____ on their non-academic achievements. Many students currently still adopt (55) that do-or-die _____ for every test and paper. Every examination seems to (56) _____ a high-stake one. The Singapore education system is rather well- (57) regarded around the world. In _____ to reduce the emphasis on only academic (58) performance, MOE tries to reduce the stress in the system by paying more _____ to students' well-being. The education system will evolve to help students (59) not be too hard on _____ because students are encouraged to look (60) _____ for each other's mental health and communicate with their parents (61) regularly. It is noted that the stress level has gone _____ among lower primary (62) pupils as there are no examinations till the end of Primary 2. _____ workload for (63) lower primary pupils is now lighter, it remains heavy at the higher levels such as secondary schools and junior colleges. Examinations inevitably bring students stress but learning to cope with stress is part and _____ of life. Less than satisfactory performances in tests

Section I: Comprehension (Open-ended) 20 marks

Read this passage carefully and answer the questions 71 to 80.

Helen lay on her bed, worrying about her son. There were no other houses in sight. The land was open and flat and many of the fields were left unploughed because of the war. The light of the moon shone upon the cottage. It came through the open window into the bedroom where Helen was asleep. Once she had been beautiful, now thin furrows run across her forehead.

On the dressing-table, there was a large photograph of a smiling young boy in a pilot uniform, the kind that one likes to send to one's mother. Helen slept her restless sleep. There was no noise anywhere save for the soft, regular noise of her breathing and the rustle of the bedclothes as she stirred in her sleep. Then, from far away, there came a deep, gentle rumble which grew and became louder until soon the whole sky seemed to be filled with a great noise which throbbed. It kept on throbbing and did not stop.

10

Right at the beginning, even before it came close, Helen had heard the noise. In her sleep she had been waiting for it, listening for the noise and dreading the moment when it would come. When she heard it, she opened her eyes and for a while she lay quite still, listening. Then she sat up, pushed the bedclothes aside and got out of bed.

15

She stood there in the cold, leaning out of the window, looking up and searching the sky. There was a cold gust of wind. She wrapped the blankets round her shoulders like a shawl. Then she sat down all by herself in the room. The throbbing overhead was very loud. For a long time it continued as the huge procession of war planes moved towards the south. All the while Helen sat huddled in her blankets, looking out of the window into the sky.

20

Then it was over. It seemed as though the whole countryside was holding its breath. An army was marching in the sky. All along the route, families had heard the noise and knew that there would be a battle. People in their houses went out into their gardens. They stood looking up into the sky, worried and afraid. As the war planes flew across the land that night, those who heard them became strangely silent. For those women whose husbands and sons were with the planes, the moment was not an easy one to bear. Now they had gone and Helen lay back in the armchair and closed her eyes, but she did not sleep. Her face was white. Her skin seemed to have been drawn tightly over her cheeks and gathered up in wrinkles around her eyes.
