Section D: Comprehension MCQ (5 x 2 marks)

Read the passage below carefully and answer the questions that follow.

Last Sunday, my sister, Daisy, decided to help out in the garden. She was merrily watering the plants when a bee flew into it. It buzzed and danced among the flowers before resting on one, probably to collect nectar. Being curious, Daisy put her face close to the insect to observe it. However, the bee, having been interrupted at work, retaliated by stinging Daisy's left cheek.

5

"Argh!" her scream shattered the peace of that lazy afternoon. Everyone rushed before a wailing Daisy. Wincing in pain, she clutched her cheek. When Mom finally prised her hand away, we could see part of the bee's sting sticking out of her skin. The cheek that had been stung was red and swollen. Her face looked just like a misshapen peach with one side larger than the other! She looked so funny that I burst out laughing. Even Mom and Dad could not help smiling at her sight. Poor Daisy! She could only shoot daggers at me.

10

The next day, Daisy and I were walking across a grassy patch on our way home from school. It had rained earlier and the ground was slippery. Suddenly, I lost my footing. "Whoa!" I yelled, falling headlong into a puddle of mud.

15

"Are you alright, Donald?" Daisy asked, looking concerned.

"Do I look fine to you?" I snapped, spitting out bits of mud as I spoke. My white uniform was dirty, with blotches of wet mud all over. Daisy giggled.

"You look like a mud cake!" she exclaimed as I picked a lump of mud off my face.

Then the giggles turned into guffaws. That was the last straw. I was about to scold her for teasing me when I remembered having laughed at her swollen face the previous day. Now, the joke was on me. "Well, I'm more like a marshmallow dipped in chocolate," I joked. We burst into laughter again as we made our way home. Indeed, laughing at ourselves is a good way to manage any situation. I had learnt this lesson that day.

For each question from 16 to 20, choose the correct answer and shade its number (1, 2, 3 or 4) on the Optical Answer Sheet.

16. Which of the following sentences was true about Daisy?

- (1) She had disturbed the bee while it was resting.
- (2) She wanted to find out how the bee collected nectar.
- (3) She was given the job of watering the plants on Sundays.
- (4) She enjoyed watching the bee buzz and dance among the flowers.

17. What was one possible reason why Daisy had clutched her left cheek?

- (1) She was embarrassed about being stung by a bee.
- (2) She dared not show her red and swollen cheek to everyone.
- (3) She was trying to relieve the pain of the sting by pressing on it.
- (4) She did not want Donald to burst out laughing on seeing the sting.

18. The phrase "shoot daggers" in line 11 tells us that Daisy was feeling _____ towards Donald.

- (1) hurt
- (2) angry
- (3) humiliated
- (4) threatened

19. In line 20, "the last straw" refers to _____.

- (1) Donald's uniform being muddied
- (2) Donald falling into a puddle of mud

Section H : Comprehension Cloze (10 x 1 mark)

There are ten blanks numbered 40 to 49, fill in each blank with a suitable word.

Long ago in ancient China, there was a magistrate named Wang. One day, he set his three daughters-in-law a task. They were to (40) _____ to their parents' homes and bring back two items: a flame wrapped in paper and a fabric wind-maker. Whoever (41) _____ do so would be the head of the household.

Two days later, two of Wang's daughters-in-law came back empty-handed. (42) _____, the third daughter-in-law, Ling, brought back a paper lantern and a fabric fan. Wang was impressed (43) _____ her intelligence. He thought, "She may be plain-looking but she is certainly (44) _____ of managing the household."

When the emperor heard about Wang's clever daughter-in-law, he decided to (45) _____ her to the test.

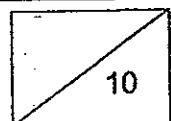

"Bad news!" said Wang. "The emperor has ordered me to turn all the water in the sea into wine within a month. If I (46) _____ to do so, I will be imprisoned!"

"Don't worry, Father. Tell the emperor that I can easily do that!" Ling replied, brimming with (47) _____.

The emperor then summoned Ling before his court and demanded to know her method of changing seawater into wine. She answered, "If Your Majesty is able to measure the volume of seawater in 'dou', the same unit of measurement for dry grains, I shall replace that same volume with wine! If Your Majesty is unable to do that, then (48) _____ can I."

The emperor thought, "Although Ling looks ordinary, she is actually (49) _____ smart." He then turned to his officials and said, "You can't judge a person by outward appearance, just as you can't measure the volume of seawater by the 'dou'."

Section K: Comprehension Open-Ended (5 x 2 marks)Read the passage below and answer questions 53 to 57.

One day, I went to the food centre with my parents. I noticed an old man, all wrinkly and hunched, going round the tables, lugging a huge bag. At our table, he held out three packets of tissue paper in his bony hand and mumbled under his breath. Mom felt sorry for him and paid a dollar for them. He nodded appreciatively at us and left. I crinkled my nose and rolled my eyes at the back view of the old man as he hobbled away. "Old people are useless!" I muttered in disgust. 5

A week later, I was walking through a park to go home. I was unhappy with my teacher, Miss Tan. Pretending to be a judge, I said, "You, Miss Tan, are found guilty of giving the ten-year-olds under your charge too much homework! By the power vested in me, I order you to adopt a no-homework policy ..." 10

Suddenly, loud barking broke the calm of the park. I turned around to see two brown dogs charging in my direction. I emptied my lungs and started running for dear life. My legs quickly burnt from the sudden exertion. Soon I was gasping for breath. The dogs were closing in. Then I fell. Thinking that my pursuers would pounce on me and sink their teeth into me, I squeezed my eyes shut, bracing myself for their bites. 15

Instead, I heard growling. I opened my eyes and saw a boy around my age waving at the dogs with a big tree branch. The dogs' attention had been diverted from me. Now, they were snarling at him and poised for an attack. I picked up another branch on the ground and helped the boy fight off the dogs. We battled courageously. However, we were no match for the dogs. After a while, our backs were against a tree with the salivating dogs just a metre away. Then, we heard the sweetest words ever. "Here doggies, come to Grandpa!" an old man shouted as he laid some chicken bones on the ground. Immediately, the dogs lost interest in us and bounded to the food. We almost collapsed with relief. The old man then gave us a wink and smiled. 20

That day, I saw old age in a new light. The elderly could also be resourceful and helpful towards others. I started to have a sense of respect for them. 25
