Faith and Olivia went for their drama practice. They started with a warm-up and pretended to be animals. "Slump like a sad elephant. Jump up and down like a happy puppy! Roar like a dragon!" Miss Gomez said. "Now, we're going to practise using our strong voices. One of you will play the angry dragon and scare the timid rabbit. Then, the brave horse will step in to save the rabbit. I want to hear your loudest, bravest voice!" Miss Gomez said. Standing tall, Faith played the brave horse. When the practice had ended, she and Olivia waited at the courtyard for their parents. Suddenly, they heard soft voices. In the corner, two boys stood close to a small boy. Looking mean, one boy grinned while the other laughed. The small boy looked terrified. "Olivia," Faith whispered in a shaky voice. "Go get Miss Gomez." As Olivia sprinted off, Faith stood rooted to the spot. Then, she thought of the brave horse she had played earlier. Gathering all her courage, she took a deep breath and yelled, "Leave him alone!" The boys froze, startled by her voice. Just then, Miss Gomez arrived and took them to the staffroom. As Faith and Olivia helped the boy gather his things, they felt proud of themselves for standing up to the bullies.	5 10 15

Comprehension Open-Ended – Passage B (10 marks)

Read the passage carefully and annotate.

Nine was at a busy market, hiding behind crates of fish. The market was noisy, with people moving around and traders shouting. Nine had a plan. She was trying to steal something but had to create a distraction. The moment she caught sight of the shopkeeper, the plan swung into action. In a flash, she grabbed the biggest fish she laid her eyes on. Without thinking twice, she threw it at him, hitting him right in the face! The shopkeeper looked extremely surprised, and Nine quickly took off, dodging people, horses, and piles of fish.	5
"Hey! Stop! You..." the scream trailed off as she ran further away. Just when she was thinking where she could hide, she spotted an old building she knew well—the library. Nine slipped inside. She felt safe but she was not done yet. Nine had wanted the shopkeeper's cashbox at the market but it failed. Now, she wanted something else—a fancy handbag she had seen outside.	10
She peeked through the window and saw a lady in a beautiful red dress, holding the very handbag Nine had wanted. Nine crouched down like a cat, ready to pounce. She counted in her head: three, two, one... Go! Nine flung the door open and dashed towards the lady, planning to bump into her and grab the bag. Just as she was about to succeed, the shopkeeper appeared out of nowhere and Nine crashed into him instead!	15
In a panic, Nine tried to run away again, but she felt two large hands grab her by the shoulders. Nine knew that she had landed herself in big trouble. There is no use to struggle and free myself. I have to face the music, Nine thought as she hung her head low in shame.
